Initial Shipment Is Made By Association

The first shipment of livestock by the United Farmers of Chauvin District Live Stock Shipping Association was made last week. It was a mixed bunch of stock, containing come rather young stock, but nevertheless, the returns panned out better than was anticipated by the shippers.

It is intended to make another shipment around about the end of the month. More particulars will be published in due course.

Hail Damage

During the past few years this district has been singularly favored by an almost complete immunity from hailstorms. This year too, the district as a whole has escaped lightly, but the two storms of last week created serious losses to several individuals. The biggest loss of which news has reached our office is that of Edgar Belanger. He had 190 acres in crop, of which 170 were damaged, and most of it entirely ruined as a grain crop.

Other losses have been sustained by Messrs Girard, Larouche, Sevigny, N. Doucette, J. Furlatte, H. Foreman, Joe Dallyn, Ed. Lambert,

We hear that further losses were sustained in the district nearer Provost and also south of Cresthill, in which district the Morrisons were losers from hail.

Mr V. W. Messenger, municipal inspector of hail insurance was in town yesterday. He is out to adjust the loss sustained by H. Young.

THE PRICE PROBLEM

Merchants everywhere, especially those doing business in the small country towns, are asking "How can we meet the problems forced upon us by the high and rising prices of merchandise?"

A large number have been unable to meet these problems successfully and have been forced to go out of business.

The most serious of the problems confronting the dealer on account of the high prices is probably the increasing demands for capital to maintain his stock and conduct his business.

There are three practical methods of meeting these problems, which any dealer can supply to his own business.

In the first place the dealer should restrict the extension of credit to his customers. The dealer who feels that he is under obligation to finance his customers, and do it gratuitously, has a misconception of the functions of a retail merchant. He is confusing his functions with those of the banker. There is no more reason why he should furnish the capital for him to do business on. If the dealer should suggest such an idea to his customers they would be prompt in advising him to go to the bank for his capital, and they would be right in doing so.

And so is the dealer right in insisting that his customers patronize the bank for this is its proper function.

No apologies to the customer are necessary for refusing to extend credit. It is only straight out and out business.

It is to the advantage of the dealer in a number of ways. Instead of having from $1,000 to $10,000 on his books as many dealers constantly do, he has this capital free to work for him. He can take advantage of his cash discounts, which in itself represents a considerable addition to his profits in the course of a year. It avoids the possibility of losses through bad debts from irresponsible credit customers or as a result of sickness or death on their part, or their moving out of the community. He has a smaller amount of capital involved, and hence need not charge off such a large amount for interest on capital. And all these advantages result in a decreased cost of doing business and greater profits.

Furthermore, the cleaner the dealer's collections the sounder the business, the better the inventory and the better the showing on the balance sheet, which means a better showing to the bank, and a greater goodwill value to a prospective buyer.

It is to the advantage of the customer in two ways. In the first place it will curb any tendency to extravagance which results from too easy credit. It will make him a more careful buyer. And in the second place, he will benefit indirectly from the dealer's decreased cost of doing business on a cash basis.

The second practical method of meeting the high prices is for the dealer to carry smaller stocks, and hence require less capital. There are few dealers who cannot cut down the size of their stocks by a very considerable amount—some of them at least half—by buying a few brands in each line, and buying in small quantities and oftener. If dealers will analyze their their stocks carefully most of them will find a number of off-brands of slow-moving, non-standard merchandise which they could eliminate from their stock and release the money tied up in them. Any merchant can satisfy the demands of his trade with a few good well-known standard brands. By buying in needed quantities and oftentimes of times per year. And furthermore he can turn his capital a greater thermore, he will always have fresh new goods on the shelves, which are trademarked and are an inspiration to the clerk in selling and a greater satisfaction to the customer in buying.

He will also be more likely to follow declining price tendencies closely, and avoid speculation in big investment in stock.

And finally, the third practical suggestion for helping to meet the present high prices is to cut down the cost of doing business. This can be done not only by restricting the extension of credit but by concentrating on and pushing standard, advertised brands of merchandise, provided they give you a fair profit. Every merchant has found from experience that staple lines move faster and sell with less effort than lines that are less frequently called for. Standard goods are readily accepted by the customer, and hence the clerk can wait on a greater number per day. By utilizing the selling help usually furnished by the manufacturer of well known goods, by the use of window displays, store and counter displays, and cuts in the local newspapers, he can stimulate his volume of business, all of the greatest importance and economy and resulting in lower costs of doing business. Quality merchandise builds goodwill for the dealer who sells it.

PARTICIPATION CERTIFICATES

Following the announcement that the wheat board is now ready to pay to those farmers holding wheat participation certificates a portion of the balance of the money due them on the sale of last year's crop, there has been a general movement on the part of holders to realize on their paper.

The manner of payment to farmers is one that should be made perfectly clear. Payments will be made through any western branch of a chartered bank. The holder of a participation certificate should go to his own local bank, present his certificates and the bank will make collection for him charging him the sum of 15c. per certificate for so doing. These certificates are to be collected by all the western bank branches and forwarded to Winnipeg. The government pays the money to their bank office at Winnipeg and it is distributed from there to the local branches which in turn distributes it to the farmers, at the same time giving them back their certificates. Later it is hoped although we have not yet seen it actually promised, there will be a further and final payment of any balance. It is generally understood that the entire balance to be realized by the redemption of these participation certificates was to be paid on or before the end of next October. It is not so long now until that time will arrive. As it is by the method of payment being followed the farmers are evidently to be stung a second time for a 15c. collection commission on each certificate. What it will figure to per bushel all depends on the size of the load sold by the farmer at the elevator. The smaller the load the greater the proportion of the sale price lifted from the pocket of the producer. Why could not the government have waited the few weeks left for the time when they could have paid the whole in a lump sum and thus saved the farmer the little which in many cases will mean much to him?"

EDIAORIALS

The Canadian railways will proceed at once to increase the wages of the railway workers. Then the freight and passenger rates will go up. Then the cost of living will get another boost and then the everlasting circle will keep right on going. We are not getting very far in this way.

The morning and evening newspapers of Regina and Saskatoon have amalgamated in a rather interesting fashion, which is rather difficult to explain. However the arrangement may be, the transaction indicates the trend of the modern newspapers, and the pressure of financial affairs on the press. At one time not long ago Regina supported one morning and three evening papers. Now it will support one. These are hard days for newspaper financing.

The ancient rivalry between districts respecting the best crops and largest shipments, which has been absent for some time, is being revived now, which is an exceedingly good sign.

A Winnipeg man threatens to use electricity and heat houses at nine dollars a month. If successful, that man will not want for friends in this country for the rest of his life.

All things come to those who wait—except success. Success is the natural outcome of hard work and opportunities seized.

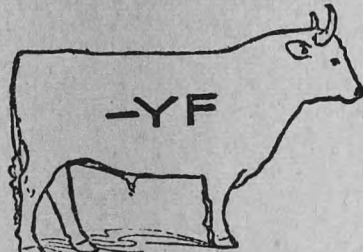

Credit is better than ready money.

General Canning & Jam Making

By "MAPLE LEAF"

Fruit for canning should be fresh, firm, of good quality and not over-ripe.

Making the syrup—Weigh sugar to equal one third of the weight of fruit and for each pound of sugar add three cups of water, boil sugar and water to make a thin syrup, and a little salt as it will require less sugar.

Preparing the fruit—Large fruits such as plums, prunes, apricots and peaches should be washed, but berries should not.

Halve plums, prunes and peaches to remove stones.

To skin peaches—Pour boiling water over them and let soak for ten minutes, strain, pour cold water over them and skin with the hands.

Pack tightly in jars, set the jars in a pan of hot water and fill them quite full with syrup; screw or place covers on loosely, place jars in warm water up to the neck in kettle or boiler. Put on the stove and bring gradually to a boil; for berries of any kind and cherries boil 10 to 15 minutes, for large fruits boil 20 minutes, then remove jars from kettle and screw lids tightly.

Jam Making

The method given below is very simple and at the same time preserves the natural flavor and color of the fruit much better than other commonly used methods.

The various fruits are to be prepared as required.

Strawberries are to be hulled; raspberries, loganberries, blackberries, and blue berries require no special preparation.

Halve apricots, plums, and prunes and remove the stones; apricot seed added to apricot jam give an agreeable nutty flavor, pick over fruit and wash in preserving kettle.

Put on stove and bring gradually to a boil, stirring from time to time, the drier fruits such as apricots and plums may require some water to prevent from burning. Boil from 15 to 20 minutes stirring and skimming frequently. Heat an equal quantity of sugar and add to boiling fruit. Boil 10 to 15 minutes or until clear, stirring constantly, seal in jars.

Useful Hints

Salt added to water in which glasses are washed helps to brighten them.

Custards should never be allowed to boil. If they do they will curdle.

Window plants should be sprinkled with cold tea, which keeps the soil free from worms.

Boiling water to which a little borax has been added will remove tea-stains.

Coal will be improved in heating power if a little saltpetre or soda, dissolved in water, is sprinkled over it.

It is a mistake to use soda when scrubbing floors and tables. It makes the boards a bad color. Plenty of soap and water cleanses just as well.

To renovate brown boots and shoes wash them well in warm water and soft soap, using a hard nail brush. This will remove all the old and dirty polish.

Orange peel dried and grated makes a delicious flavoring for many dishes. A little dried orange peel grated into vanilla extract will give a pudding a rich flavor.

To clarify dripping put it into a bowl and pour on boiling water to cover, stir well, and allow to cool. The purified dripping will then form a solid cake on the top, which, after it has been wiped dry, will be ready for use.

To skin a beetroot easily, without bleeding it or causing it to lose color, put it in cold water as soon as it is cooked. Then draw the hand gently down each one and the skin will drop off without trouble.

It often happens that when a lemon has been cut only half is used. It is a good plan to place the remaining half, cut side downwards on a plate and cover with a tumbler. This excludes the air, and the lemon will keep fresh for some time.

Our teeth are the most imperishable part of our bodies. They last for centuries. Next is our hair. After we pass away, the body turns to dust; even the bones crumble to powder, but the hair remains untouched by decay. So long as any vegetable life remains in the body, the hair keeps on growing. Hair kept for centuries has not lost its color.

All wall clocks and grandfather clocks accumulate dust, which in time stops them. The following simple remedy will prevent this. Get a handful of cotton-wool, steep it well in paraffin oil, and place at the bottom of your clock, out of the way of the pendulum. The fumes strike upwards and cleanse as well as lubricate the works.

Cold tea should be used when cleaning varnished paper.

To polish oilcloth, add a tablespoonful of paraffin to the water used for washing it.

Grass cut while the dew is still upon it is excellent to use in place of tea-leaves when sweeping carpets. It prevents the carpet from becoming soiled.

Local Notes Of Interest

The crops, during the past week, have made splendid progress. It is expected that cutting will be general in ten days.

Mr Anderson, lately manager of the Merchants Bank, was a visitor to our town this week.

We are informed that our old friend Mr. W. Cubbitt is to return to Chauvin, resuming his old post as buyer at the Security elevator. We trust that the report will prove true

Several farmers are already drawing out their winter coal. This is well because every ton taken now relieves the tense situation which is almost certain to develop. We use the term 'tense' we are doubtful as to whether we should not have used a far more emphatic one, such as "critical"

SELF SACRIFICING

The high cost of living is frightful—It's hard to buy food or get clothes; The jinx of existence is spiteful; Where prices will stop, goodness knows.

To live within incomes seems harder Than squaring the circle—but we Have tackled the task with keen ardor, And solved it by giving up—see?

Ma's given up taxies and candy—She truly was getting too stout; The money she saves comes in handy And helps me considerably out.

Bell's given up matinees—Harry Has given up cigarettes—Joe No longer is planning to marry; Instead he helps out with the show.

Jane's given up dances—her dresses Were truly a heavy outlay; While Betty, who still braids her tresses, Has given up dolls for her play.

Ben's given up sport, sold his rifle, And turned in the price to the "crown." What's that? Oh, I'm doing my trifle I've given up walking down town! —Granthier Greene

BABY O' MINE

Baby o' mine—with your dear brown eyes, As you sit on the floor and play With your bricks and your toys that you do so prize And your dolls that you hug all day I wonder what life will bring to you, Baby mine with your eyes so true, What life will bring in the days to be, My Baby, who means so much to me.

Baby o' mine—with your heart of gold I pray in the days to come For the best of all that life can hold. For you, till your days are done, That love shall guard you day by day, That love shall shield you all the way And when your span of life is past, That God's own Love shall hold you fast. —Horace Hacker.

"Let me sell you a letter opener?" asked the shopman in the novelty shop.

"Have one at home" grunted the little men.

"Indeed! What kind is it?"

"My wife."

A man was in a railroad accident. After awhile he appeared on the street walking with crutches.

"Hello old fellow," greeted an acquaintance, rushing up to shake his hand, "I am certainly glad to see you around again."

"Thanks," respnded the injured one.

"I see you are hanging fast to your crutches," observed the acquaintance. "Can't you do without them?"

"My doctor says I can," answered the injured party "but my lawyer says I can't."

A cow broke its leg. Its owner thought: "If our soldiers can have wooden legs, why not a cow?" He tried it. The operation was successful. The wooden leg fits with perfect ease and the cow goes along the same as usual, with her milk production as large and as good as ever.

Gambling is almost a universal passion among men in the Welsh mining districts. It is not an uncommon sight to see a group of men and youths standing at a street crner watching for the number on the next tramcar on which there was a sweepstake. Even the numbers of the hymns given out at a religious service not infrequently form the subject of bets.

If the appetite of a man were equivalent to that of a spider he would eat a prize ox in twenty-four hours and yet call for a snack before going to bed.

Our Weekly Sermon

JACOB'S VISION

Text: Gen. 28: 16-17.—And Jacob waked out of his sleep and he said, "Surely the Lord is in this place: and I knew it not. and he was afraid, and said, How dreadful it this place! this is none other but the house of God and this is the gate of heaven." Jacob ill treated his brother Esau and so was forced to leave his home in order to save his life. Isaac sent him away that he might choose a wife out of his own kindred. Jacob travelled alone to Padan-aram about four hundred miles to the north-east One night he slept at Luz where he had a wonderful dream or vision. Jacob dreamed that he saw a ladder set up on the earth and the top reached to heaven. Angels were ascending and descending on it. The Lord said, "I am the Lord God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Isaac: the land whereon thou liest to thee will I give and to thy seed".

When Jacob awoke, he said, "surely the Lord is in this place, and I knew it not." The vision was a surprise, but he would have had no such vision if he had had no spiritual desire. It is a superstition that it is necessary to withdraw from the common duties of life in order to draw near to God. Moses was herding sheep when God appeared to him in the burning bush. The disciples were fishing when Christ summoned them, Saul was riding on horseback, when the heavenly light shone round him. So we can realize God's presence at our work or business.

Jacob's sense of sin made him afraid. He was fresh from an act of deceit and lying. How could God reveal Himself to such a man? He could not, unless he had repented of his sins. All his afflictions had taught him that the devil's wages are hard, and had worked in him that godly sorrow that leads to repentance Sin separates from God, but it is when a man is self-condemned that the light of God breaks in upon him, God is ever near when needed most. A man never needs God so much as when guilty of sin, for he is never in so much danger as then. This story tells us that God appears in grace to a man to prevent him doing further wrong, to show he is not cast off and that from the sin into which he has fallen there is a way to God.

The presence of God made the place sacred to Jacob. The Lord's presence in God's house makes it to be the gate of God is a certain truth. We are unable to grasp the fact. Therefore He has been pleased to set His name here and there, in a stone, in a tent, in a temple, in a church building. Thus a church gives visibility to Christianity. It witnesses to the unseen, the spiritual, the eternal, which is about us on every side. It shows God to us here because He is everywhere.

What Is Life To You?

To the preacher life's a sermon,
To the joker it's a jest;
To the miser life is money,
To the loafer life is rest.

To the lawyer life's a trial;
To the poet life's a song;
To the doctor life's a patient
That needs treatment right along.

To the soldier life's a battle,
To the teacher life's a school;
Life's a good thing to the grafter,
It's a failure to the fool.

To the man upon the engine
Life's a long and heavy grade;
It's a gamble to the gambler;
To the merchant life is trade.

Life's a picture to the artist,
To the rascal life's a fraud;

Life perhaps is but a burden
To the man beneath the hod.

To the heaven-blest romancer
Life's a story ever new;
Life is what you try to make it—
Brother, what is life to you?

KILLED IN ATTEMPT TO CROSS NIAGARA IN BARREL

Charles Stephen of Bristol, England, lost his life while attempting to cross the Horseshoe Falls, Niagara Falls, in a barrel Sunday. Stephens made the attempt in a barrel of his own construction. He came to the United States from England a month ago to perform the perilous feat. The barrel was dashed to pieces and Stephen's body has not yet been found. Stephens was a barber in Bristol, England, and was known all over the country for his dare-devil feats which he performed as a "sideline"

SPECIAL NOTICE

Will Resident Owners of lands within this Municipal District please report all cases of noxious weeds to the Municipal Office; so that the attention of the Weed Inspector for the locality concerned may be directed to same.

Rumours are heard as to "weeds or mustard on such and such a farm;" but no one seems to think it worth while to report the fact to the proper quarter. Only four reports have been entered during the season so far. All reports should be made to the Secretary, who will forward same to the Councillor for the district affected. After inspection has been made, the notice is sent out to the owner of the land where the weeds are found.

WHAT IS LIFE INSURANCE?

LIFE INSURANCE IS AN ANCHOR OF SECURITY

It is an alliance of prudent men against misfortune. It is the practical expression of care for the dependent ones. It is the only way to create an estate by a stroke of the pen. It is the one investment that reaches its greatest value at the time of the greatest need. It cultivates, and by desirable compulsion compels the habit of saving. It gives all a savings bank gives and much more. It answers the question whether or not a man will live long enough to provide for his family. It protects wealth and removes poverty. It safeguards encumbered property and pays off the mortgage. It gives peace of mind.

able to contest this event .
